Theme:

The kindness awards that our school have voted for as an outcome of Friendship Week have arrived.

This week the Ambassadors will vote for who they want to receive them but next week it will be a class vote. A question for the class is, how will we organise this so that it is democratic and fair?

Notes:

- We could have a kindness box that during the week everyone post names into if someone is kind.
- We could have a kindness monster that we put names into, the person with the most names at the end of the week gets the award.
- We could have a kind-o-meter, a square is coloured in above your name (like a graph) if you have the most squares you get the award that week
- We could have a kindness balloon in the book corner that people stick names on. If your name is on the most you get the award.

Your class may have another idea.

The Kindness Awards will be chosen like this:

Week 1: Children in the class.

Week 2: Class teacher

Week 3: Midday Supervisor

Next Steps:

- Please talk to your class about what they think and chose how you will vote ready for next week
- Give out Kindness Awards on Friday 25th November
